

Explorer Describes Hazardous Journey Over 'Rub 'al Khali'

Bertram Thomas, Conqueror Of Arabian Wastes, Addresses Forum

DIFFICULTIES CITED

Hostile Natives, Extreme Heat Along With Food And Water Shortage Hinders Traveller

Describing his thousand mile journey across the isolated desert of Rub 'al Khali in the almost unexplored district of Southern Arabia, before the People's Forum yesterday, Bertram Thomas gave his audience a picture of what has been acclaimed by many as the finest feat of exploration of the present century.

A fifteen year stay in Eastern Arabia gave Mr. Thomas an opportunity to learn the language, customs and religion of the people and thus enabled him to make his way into the unexplored section of South Arabia where invading infidels are most unwelcome. Pointing out that Arabia was perhaps the most historically important country in the world, due mainly to the fact that three of the world's chief religions were founded there, it seemed surprising, the speaker remarked, that it should have been explored to a lesser extent than any other country.

Hottest Climate In World

This, the speaker continued, was due to the fact that the climate is the hottest and driest in the world and that one must be smuggled into the district due to the very great hostility of the natives to outsiders. Because of this hostility it is necessary that explorations be made single handed rather than by parties of ten or more as has been the case in other countries.

The dangers and difficulties of travelling were referred to by the speaker. Hostile bands of natives were a continual source of danger while for the whole two months it was necessary to live on camels' milk while the water obtainable in the few water holes available was said to be so bad as to be almost undrinkable. Being Mohammedan in faith his guides were in the habit of praying five times a day, a habit which the speaker considered quite advisable due to prevailing conditions.

Ancient Graveyard Discovered

One of the most interesting and valuable discoveries of his, the first European's trip across the desert, was that of a graveyard in the heart of the desert. Inscriptions on the stones and the fact that they did not face toward Mecca indicated that these were the remnants of the ancient star worshippers.

Dr. H. D. Brunt, President of the People's Forum Executive Council, announced that Mr. Hendrik Willem Van Loon would unfortunately not be able to address the meeting next week but that Captain Philpott, of the Ontario section of the C.G.F., would deliver the lecture. The meeting will be held in the Church of the Messiah, Sherbrooke Street West and Simpson Street next Sunday at three o'clock.

The subjects of the lectures are as follows: "The Importance of Vocational Guidance," by Dr. W. D. Tait; "Talents and Temperaments," by Mr. E. C. Webster; "Measuring Industrial Fitness," by Dr. N. W. Morton; "The Intelligence of a Chimpanzee," illustrated by film, by Dr. N. W. Morton. For further information apply to secretary, Department of Extra-Mural Relations.

Criminal Lawyer To Address Laborites

R. L. CALDER, well-known criminal lawyer of this city, will address the Labour Club meeting tomorrow evening at 8:15 in Strathcona Hall choosing for his topic "The Individual's Guarantees of Personal Liberties in Canada." The speaker has been denouncing the encroachments of Canadian government on personal liberties and by so doing has roused the wrath of Premier Taschereau, who recently replied to these accusations.

The meeting is open to all students and a large attendance is anticipated.

Anxiety Over Sir Arthur's Condition Shown In Cables

Bulletin Reports Slight Touch Of Bronchitis Developing

"SIR ARTHUR CURRIE passed a comfortable day. He has a touch of bronchitis, but otherwise his condition remains the same." This was the report on Sir Arthur's condition issued by hospital authorities late last night. The touch of bronchitis is considered slight and not likely to seriously retard the Principal's slow but gradual recuperation.

Widespread sympathy and concern over Sir Arthur's condition has been manifested through a flood of messages—official and otherwise—which have been received. The Right Honourable J. H. Thomas, Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs telegraphed through Sir William Clark, British (Continued on page 4)

Montreal Orchestra Commences Season

Success Marks Program Presented To Large Audience

Offering a program as full of good music as that of the Montreal Orchestra at yesterday's concert is the best way to increase the organization's popularity, and to build up sizeable audiences. The large gathering present gave proof to this statement; it applauded tumultuously on occasion, but its efforts did not speak too well for its discernment. Berlioz' colossal "Procession to the Scaffold," brought polite applause; Beethoven's "First Symphony" brought the house down. The opposite would have been more appropriate.

Henrich Esser's smooth arrangement of the Passacaglia by Bach lost some of the sharpness and precision which one associates with the German classicist, but gave the orchestra chance to begin the program on a clear and carefully wrought note. Handel's "Water Music" with its delicate and simply arranged movements served excellently as program filler, and was well handled.

The Beethoven Symphony No. 1 taxed the orchestra beyond its capabilities, despite the simplicity and directness of the music, the major fault lay with the first violins, who, with studied consistency, failed to follow the technique and attack of their concert-master, giving thus one of the most ragged performances of their career! Frankly, if the speed of the music is too great for these musicians, they should change place with the second violins who do not fall in this respect; otherwise the programs should be adjusted accordingly. The Berlioz was played as it should be, with force, vitality and grandeur—a real achievement.

Laurence Leslie Holmes rendered two songs as the Orchestra's first soloist this season. His voice was well modulated, and his singing showed a skillful dramatic response to his music, but was offset slightly by tones lacking in musical color. The orchestra rose aptly to the occasion with excellent accompaniment.

V.C. Wynne-Edwards Describes Habits Of Atlantic Sea Birds

Public Lecture Given At Victoria Hall Saturday

DIFFICULT TO STUDY

Real Ocean Birds Are Too Inaccessible For Close Observation

"BECAUSE of their extreme inaccessibility it is very difficult to make a study of sea birds," said Professor V. C. Wynne-Edwards during the introduction to his illustrated lecture on "Sea Birds of the North Atlantic," given at Victoria Hall on Saturday afternoon. Professor Wynne-Edwards also pointed out that it is often difficult to distinguish between fresh-water birds and sea-birds because some of the latter live far inland.

One of the three main classes of sea birds is the in-shore group, which frequents the tidal region and never goes far out to sea. The gulls are a well-known representative of this class and it is of especial interest to us in Quebec that the herring-gull nests in the Laurentian Lake district. Quite common in the St. Lawrence valley are the elder ducks from whose breasts we obtain elder down. Cormorants, which dive into the water from a considerable height and capture fish, are rapidly becoming scarce.

Off-shore Birds

In defining the off-shore birds, the speaker drew attention to the fact that although these birds will fly over the water for considerable distances they are seldom found where the water is more than one hundred fathoms deep. The best known of this class is the great auk, now extinct, which actually "swam" through the water in pursuit of fish, using its wings for motive power. Bonaventure Island is a great breeding ground for sea birds and great colonies of Gannets are to be found there.

Despite the fact that Gannets have increased enormously in number during the last 25 years, only 19 Gannet breeding places are known to exist. They are very common on both sides of the Atlantic and have a characteristic way of feeding... while flying at a great altitude they sight a school of fish and drop like a stone into the water and seize their prey. They cannot swim and lay only one egg per year.

Real Ocean Birds

The real ocean birds live far out to sea and very little is known about them. They come to land only when they must for breeding purposes. The Fulmar Petrels so dislike even the sight of land that they live at sea for eight months of the year and when they must come ashore do so in the dark. They have terrific strength in their wings and soar aloft apparently without any effort whatsoever. The amazing thing about these birds is that they live entirely without fresh water for such a lengthy period.

A very good example of the wonderful sense of direction birds have is the Great Shearwater, a bird which breeds on an island in the South Atlantic and to reach it flies two or three thousand miles, often through fog and always out of sight of land. Worthy of interest also is the Pomarine Jaeger which makes opposite migration to the birds with which we are familiar.

Buffet Supper Date Changed To Nov. 22

THE buffet supper for all women students will be held on Wednesday, November 22nd, and not on Thursday as previously stated. The reason for the change is to enable Freshettes to attend the English play which will be produced that evening for their benefit in Moyse Hall, and to enable members of the R.V.C. House of Commons Club and of the R.V.C. Historical Club to attend the meetings being held that evening.

The supper will take place in the Convocation Hall of R.V.C. at 6 o'clock. As many women students as possible are urged to attend in order to make this innovation a success. The purpose of the gathering is to create a jovial and informal atmosphere in which Freshettes may become acquainted with the upper class women.

Eleanor Reid Talks

Feature Of S.C.M. Open House Last Night

At the S.C.M. Open House held last night the feature of the evening was Eleanor Reid's talk, her subject being "A Student Looks At France." Joyce McLeellan and Phyllis Davies acted as hostesses to the attendance, which was good.

The meeting was closed at 10:30 with singing.

Orchestra Selected For Newman Club Informal Thursday

JOHN REILLEY and his orchestra have been chosen to supply the music at the second Newman Club Informal, which will take place this Thursday evening at Congress Hall, situated at the corner of Dorchester and St. Alexander Sts. The dancing will commence at eight o'clock and the price of admission has been set at fifty cents per person.

The executive of the Newman Club has asked that it be announced that the same atmosphere of informality which made last month's informal the success it was deemed to be, will prevail again on this occasion. Refreshments will be served during the course of the evening and are included in the price of admission. All members and friends of the Newman Club are invited to attend.

Maccabean Circle Adopted As Name

Revives Designation Of Former Jewish Club At McGill

HEAR S. W. JACOBS

Speaker Considers Community History And Problems In Canada

Maccabean Circle was the name chosen yesterday afternoon by the newly organized Jewish Club, thus reviving the name of the McGill Jewish students' society which existed on the campus for almost the past 20 years. In addition to matters of business, the meeting listened to an address by S. W. Jacobs, K.C., M.P., on the "Jewish Community in Canada."

Mr. Jacobs outlined the part that Jews have played in the Dominion, and pointed to many of the past and present problems confronting them. The problem of education was a long and difficult one, as some found it difficult to adjust themselves to the curriculum and methods of the schools.

Other Problems

Another problem presented itself in the fact that the Jews concentrated on a few trades—thus giving rise to criticism from others. The speaker briefly touched upon the German situation, anti-semitic propaganda in Quebec and the action contemplated to combat it, and finally the work of charitable and communal Jewish organizations.

Mr. Jacobs made it clear that a representative of the Maccabean Circle would be welcome at meetings of the Canadian Jewish Congress and could offer valuable suggestions on the problems that he had outlined. The speaker, sometimes referred to as the "Mark Twain of the House of Commons," interspersed his remarks with many witty sallies.

Executive Committee

Several matters of business and organization occupied the attention of the meeting. An Advisory Committee was appointed consisting of the following: Ricky Ein, Harry Cramer, Isadore Dubin, Hyman Perelmutter, and Phil Vineberg. This supplements the existing executive of: President, Morton Bloomfield; Vice-President, Bea Klineberg; Secretary, Evelyn Elkin; Treasurer, Edgar Cohen; Chairman of the Social Committee, Mark Goldenberg.

The Federation of Jewish Charities will start its annual campaign for funds on November 26th and the Circle will devote itself during that week to collections on the Campus. Collectors will be appointed in each class and Faculty and any wishing to volunteer their services in this regard have been urged to do so by the executive.

Goldenberg Speaks

Attending the meeting was H. Carl Goldenberg, Lecturer in Economics and Political Science and a former President of the Maccabean Circle. Mr. Goldenberg addressed a few brief remarks to the gathering and was greeted with a good deal of applause when he revealed that there was a fund in the bank that would be turned over to the club. The suggestion was adopted that the Circle continue its old policy of donating books to the library.

The formation of possibly five different study groups was projected. Their courses will embrace Jewish History, Hebrew Language and Literature, Jewish philosophy, music and the drama. All those desiring information on or wishing to register for any one of these groups are asked to communicate with some member of the executive.

All those who have not yet contributed are asked to do so today in order that student subscriptions may reach the $300 objective or come as close as possible to this figure.

McGill's Progress In Medicine Great During Golden Age

Dean Martin Delivers Radio Address Over Station CKAC

1911 TURNING POINT

Generous Grants To Faculty Have Made Development Possible

"DURING the last thirty years the leaves of the tree of science have been most of all for the healing of the sick and it is well to know that the McGill Medical School, through the energy, skill and genius of its staff, has participated in no mean measure in the colossal advances of recent years," said Dr. C. F. Martin in a Graduates' Society broadcast Friday night over Station CKAC.

"To us, in the medical profession, who measure progress by the law of the greatest happiness to the greatest number, it is surely a source of satisfaction to realize that McGill has contributed its share to the benefit of humanity. Friends have recognized our need, and on our part the efforts on behalf of medical science have, apparently, justified their support. Indeed, in the last 30 years the leaves of the tree of science have been most of all for the healing of the sick, for no discoveries can compare with those that have relieved human suffering in man, woman and child. It is well to know, too, that the McGill Medical School, through the energy, skill and (continued on page four)

McGill Grad Dies

Edmund J. Brannen Was Active In Athletics

Hundreds of friends of the family and personal friends of Edmund J. Brannen, former young Montreal athlete and college football player, who died Thursday at the home of his father, Dr. John P. Brannen, 1188 Mountain street, attended the funeral which was held this morning at 10 o'clock in Loyola College Chapel.

Rev. Father Thomas McMahon, S.J., rector of the Loyola College, officiated at the service, assisted by Father E. F. Chabot, S.J., dean of studies, as deacon, and Father P. Brannen, S.J., as sub-deacon. Burial took place in Cote des Neiges Cemetery.

Played Football

Edmund Brannen was educated at Loyola College and McGill University. In 1923 he played on the Loyola football team, and was with the collegians when they won the intermediate intercollegiate championship of the Dominion. He later played football for McGill, and was well-known also in the realms of hockey and lacrosse. On leaving Montreal he went to New York on the staff of the Guarantee Trust Company and was with that firm until his death. He belonged to the M.A.A.A. and the Theta Delta Chi fraternity.

He is survived by his widow, formerly Coquette de Reviere, of New Orleans, La., and one son. His parents, Dr. and Mrs. John P. Brannen, also survive.

Music Club Meets

The McGill Music Club resumed activities Friday night, when they met in the Conservatorium Hall after a two-year lay-off. The purpose of the Club is to let members hear and display musical talent, and to promote good fellowship.

In the short concert which followed, Jack Waud rendered a piano composition by Dr. John Bull, and "The Fire Dance," a modern piece by Richard Farnel.

Isadore Gralnick, accompanied by his brother, played two selections on the violin. After prolonged applause, he repeated the second one.

"Lotus Flower" was sung by Miss Lily Kurtz, soprano, followed by "May-night" from Brahms, in German.

President A. Bott then announced the next meeting to be on November 31 and outlined coming programs. Dancing, games and refreshments filled the remainder of the evening.

McGill Below Quota

Greatly increased subscriptions from McGill students will be necessary to-day if they are to attain their objective of $300 in the Catholic Charities Campaign. To date, slightly over $150 or one half of their allotted quota has been collected by student canvassers who have only today to complete their collections.

All those who have not yet contributed are asked to do so today in order that student subscriptions may reach the $300 objective or come as close as possible to this figure.

Democratic System Judged Inefficient

McGill Junior Debaters Fail In Defence Of Democracy

DICTATORS PRAISED

Junior Board Of Trade Debaters Approve Departure From Democratic Government

The McGill Junior Debating League represented by S. Freedman and B. Schecter, lost its first scheduled debate to the Junior Board of Trade last Friday at the Junior Board of Trade Hall, Campbell Leach and Victor Nerlich representing the Junior Board of Trade were awarded the decision on the resolution that "The Present Departure From Democratic Government is to be Deplored."

Ben Schecter, the first speaker for the affirmative and representing McGill, showed that democracy fosters international friendship while dictatorships lead either to war or preparation for war.

Leach Speaks

Campbell Leach of the Junior Board of Trade, the first speaker for the negative, said that the rank and file of voters are ignorant of the present political problems that they are asked to decide. "Any movement bringing efficient government should be welcomed and not deplored."

Sydney Freedman representing the affirmative stated that since Russia has adopted proletarian rule, thus taking a step towards democracy, more progress has been made in the few years that this government has been in power than at any other time. "The work of a dictator though great at the moment results in chaos when the dictator disappears."

Nerlich of the Board of Trade team said that the popularity of dictatorships is due to the good results that they have obtained. Democratic governments have not accomplished as much as dictatorships in the same length of time. Some defects of democracy are its inability to control big business and the existence of the party system which leads to graft and corruption.

The judges in making their decision gave equal consideration to matter and presentation by the respective teams.

MacDonald College Speakers Will Join In Mock Parliament

Amalgamation Of Railways Motion For Wednesday Night

RELATIONS RENEWED

Return Engagement Will Follow At St. Anne de Bellevue

LONG severed debating relations with Macdonald College will be renewed next Wednesday night at 8:15 when Robert Flood and Basil Waterfield representing Macdonald, will form the government party in the second scheduled session of the Mock Parliament, sponsored by the Debating Union. Further novelty will be added by a return engagement on Friday night in which a McGill team will invade St. Anne de Bellevue.

Speaking for McGill on Wednesday will be John A. MacLeish, Arts '35, and Philip F. Vineberg, Arts '35, with the former acting as Leader of the Opposition. The Government under Prime Minister Flood will introduce a motion to the effect that: "This House favours the Amalgamation of the Two Canadian Railway Systems."

Becket Speaker

The Speaker of the House will be R. Wilson Becket, President of the Debating Union. As the event in the Union Ballroom will be in the form of a Mock Parliament, any desiring to speak on either side of the resolution should communicate with Arthur J. Marshall, Clerk of the House. Following all the speeches, a division of the House—with all entitled to vote—will decide the destiny of Canada's railroads.

A return of courtesies with Macdonald College will follow on Friday night when Henry M. Schafhausen and Max Hendrick journey to St. Anne de Bellevue and there engage in an open debate on the subject, "Resolved That Canada Has Too Much Government."

Campaign Commences

Special To The Daily from St. Anne de Bellevue, via Hong Kong.—At a well attended and well policed hectic meeting last night, the Right Honourable Robert Flood and his cabinet colleague, Basil Waterfield, claimed that the solution to the railway problem was more waterways, which they could best provide. Trouble arose as hecklers—supposedly agents of MacLeish and MacVineberg—accused the speakers of watering the stocks of a certain unamalgamated railway.

(Special from Kingston Penitentiary—by Staff Resident).—Speaking in his native constituency, the Right Honourable John A. MacLeish appealed for support in voting early, and often, and quoted poetry to an appreciative audience. The Honourable Phil Vineberg renewed old acquaintances, handed out cigars, and pointed out that the only permanent solution of the railway problem was to hand out free parliamentary passes to himself and his colleagues.

Dean Carrington Leads Conference

Religion in all its aspects was discussed Saturday at the S.C.M. Conference held at Strathcona Hall. Dean Carrington, Dean of the University of Vermont who presided, spoke on "The Benefits of Religion to Us Today."

He pointed out that some people think of religion as a series of geometrical propositions which have to be proved; others, as a bundle of customs and pieties. It is, as many statesmen have realized, a powerful weapon in obtaining the obedience of a people. The Dean mentioned "emotional conversion" explaining it as the effort of clergymen to "give" their congregation "religion" by working upon their emotions.

In olden days savages gathered to sing and dance to the best of tomtoms, hoping that God would enter into their spirits. Present-day Christians, he said, go to church in the same hope. Open discussion followed, which was resumed after supper and continued until ten o'clock. When asked how to spread religion on the campus, Dean Carrington advised students to live religion rather than to preach it.

Mount Royal Hotel on Friday December 1st, according to the executive in charge.

Though the price of admission remains at $5 per couple, a much higher quality of entertainment is promised by the Junior Prom committee. Lev King and his orchestra, popularly known as the Molsomeers in their radio broadcasts, will supply the music for the occasion while a chorus is to be engaged to stimulate the enjoyment of those fortunate enough to attend.

Dishonesty In Sport

WE NOTE that several days ago the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, meeting in Winnipeg, endorsed the resolution sponsored by Dr. A. S. Lamb of the Department of Physical Education which reads, "this Union recognizes the fact that in some forms of amateur sport there is deceit, dishonesty, and hypocrisy."

"That it is the duty and responsibility of all administrative officers to see that the spirit of amateurism be protected. That the executive committee be instructed to at once initiate measures toward eliminating these abuses as far as possible, and toward the promulgation of the proper spirit of play among the boys and girls of this country."

It is indeed a grave condition of affairs which would draw forth the ire of such a body, and one which should be deplored. Though minor offences and lapses from the amateur code might be winked at for a good reason, yet such official recognition of an increasingly apparent evil might be considered as an admission of the failure of the amateur system.

This we do not admit. Flagrant breaches of the amateur code far from indicate the condition of the whole range of Canadian sport. There is no doubt that our sports are in basically good condition. After all, those who derive the greatest benefit from sports, are the younger generation, and those still within the years below majority. For the most part they are engaging in good, clean competition and the taint of deceit and dishonesty never touches them.

Yet we express the sincere hope that this admission of taint by the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada will result in a genuine cleaning up of certain sections of athletic endeavour. The sphere of influence affected by them may not be very large, but the moral guilt borne by the whole of amateurism is considerable, and such reflections can do nothing but harm. We trust that the resolution will not die in some loophole, but will result in some beneficial action.

Sensationalism

WE ARE living in an era of sensationalism when our attention is daily being drawn to details of sordid crimes and nauseating mercenaryism; The daily newspapers are succumbing more and more to this seemingly modern evil. The penny horrible of a few decades ago has given place to a more insidious and more far reaching influence, the yellow tabloids.

Hand in hand with these gospels of the times go the movies with their eulogization of all that is undesirable in society: the modern gangster; the common prostitute; their false presentation of college life with all the "rah! rah!" element so false to the real aims and purposes of modern education.

But what is more relevant and more pertinent is the fact that these journals and films are a source of inspiration to millions of growing youngsters whose minds, yet in a formative stage, are constantly being inflamed by these harmful sources to a state where cheap sensationalism of the sort portrayed by them is appealing.

We find an increasing tendency on the part of the college student in this direction; a small minority as yet, who distort the whole picture, and the inevitable result is scathing criticism of the "college student", seldom do we find any critic broad-minded enough to overlook the exception, but must immediately judge the whole by the part.

This, alone, should suffice to force home the realization to us all that the college student is still "copy" for this insatiable publicity and will be used as such whenever occasion arises. All that college life has long since left behind in more rational centres is still used in this campaign towards sensationalism.

College students as a unit should blackball all newspapers and films of the type that go out of their way to present a distorted picture of college life. This attitude if adopted would do much to curb this growing tendency and to reinstate college life, in general, to the high standing it deserves in the community.

Music

THE McGill University Students Society has taken the cause of light opera to heart and has granted its sanction as well as a certain amount of financial insurance to the preservation and further dissemination of the muse. The McGill Choral and Operatic Society, ambassador of Gilbert and Sullivan, has decided to make the most of the opportunity with "The Mikado".

The McGill Choral and Operatic Society has been given opportunities in the past with "Pirates of Penzance" and with "Yeomen of the Guard". There were others, but these were before the doings of musical societies affected the writer as keenly as they do now. "Pirates"—three years ago was a real success. Faults were plentiful, but not obvious because they were drowned in a spirit of gusto. "Yeomen" was elephantine and uncertain. "The Mikado" has all the requirements in respect to music tempo, color and setting to make the result equal that of the "Pirates" and one anticipates hopefully.

Gilbert and Sullivan again, must be very satisfactory to Rupert D'Oyly Carte, who receives the royalties, but, and I am sure of support in the matter, I feel that the Choral and Operatic Society should try new territory occasionally. Early in its career, the society presented "Tom Jones", which I am led to believe was successful. The field of light opera or operetta has been exploited fully, and composers have not been slow to try their powers at it. The local Societe Canadienne D'Operette is still giving favourable presentations of operetta at the Imperial. The company keeps to the continental repertoire, and it always manages to find interesting plays with good music. The fact that the company is still in existence testifies to public acceptance of its work. The Operatic Soc. might do well to take the tip and change allegiance.

Gilbert and Sullivan have an overwhelming appeal to Britons and the English speaking world, and with good reason. The other English composers have never quite equalled them in this particular field of comedy-satire, but it must also be remembered that the satire is outdated and no more applicable, and the humour has become old-fashioned. The long and tedious quips make audiences laugh tediously and not long, and if G. & S. are to be presented efficiently, actors with personalities and voices become requisite.

This very popularity of G. & S. and particularly of the "Mikado" makes audiences hypercritical of performance. A professional company is either good or bad; its theatre is filled with people who want either to see how best the opera can be presented, or to refresh their memories with the tunes and beauties of what they have come to see and hear. Amateurs confront an audience which is a patronizing group, but which is also keen-eyed and frank. It will boost an average show, but if its small expectations are shattered, it will slander indiscriminately. And for this reason, the amateur must work twice as hard as the professional, even though his result be less successful.

The main fault with the Operatic Soc. in the past has been the lack of a sufficient number of good principals who have the voices, and who, if they cannot act, can at least follow a director's instructions in that respect. The choruses have always been full of good material, and if they were wooden, the fault lay in direction. An operetta is a stage production that presents a musically embellished light drama. The drama is important, but operatic societies rarely think so, leaving important dramatic details to the musical conductor who knows nothing of them. Lastly, amateur shows lack showmanship. The Player's Club, The Choral and Operatic, Music clubs, amateur concerts, and their likes all fail in this respect.

Showmanship is the art of giving the public what it thinks it wants, of making it like the stuff, and of making it anxious to come back for more. A big order, and even the New York producers slip in their attempts.

There is no single answer as to what is best, but a few factors are of universal application and are so obvious as to have escaped the notice of our local amateur groups. No audience must be asked to be uncomfortable in order to assist at the experiments of any group of workers. Lights, seating programs, music, and the product of the evening control comfort details. Each audience is the best potential advertisement available for any show, but the public must be induced to come on the first night as well as on any others, and the only way to attract it is by sheer ballyhoo. Altruism in this respect is costly and futile; sentiment does not empty pockets into the box-office till.

The public is always available, and is waiting to spend its money, times notwithstanding; it whittles away the days until the most convincing sales-ad comes before its gaze, and then it responds. And it must not be disappointed. It must be given a show that measures up to the blubs and its adjectives, even if only by innuendo, it must be given scenery that looks right is solid, colorful, and without gaps in design, and it must be given a show that sounds convincing. If the audience can be made to forget itself and to become part of the action, then it can have no time for criticism, which will all be left to the critics who must carp or lose their jobs. And above all, when audiences become enthusiastic, the show is made.

Minstrel Show

"KAMPUS KINKS" the minstrel show sponsored by the Brotherhood of Temple Emanuel-EI and being presented at Victoria Hall on Wednesday next promises to offer some smartly-paced comedy. Including a large cast of both sexes, the show will deal lightly with the vicissitudes of college footballers and their patronizing professors. Songs, dances, jokes and quips are being guaranteed for their freshness, while music will be well looked after by a professional orchestra.

A chorus of boys and girls has been trained carefully by the musical director, Sid Morris, and will be prominent in the background of the show. Short acts and dance numbers will fill out the program.

HELENE ANDREYEV, who gave such an excellent song recital a few weeks ago will be heard again this coming Saturday afternoon at Tudor Hall, in its series of popular-priced three o'clock recitals. This will be in all probability Mme. her work in this picture, she has yet much to learn. She plays the part of a naive little slavey who like a Cinderella becomes a lady, having been taken from her skivvy job, and 'adapted' in order that she may be married off to a rich but vapid youth. She does suit the part well, and gives it a genuine colour of truth. She sings well, but occasionally her polish breaks down, and one gets the impression that she is a little untrained.

Palace

"Rafter Romance"—C
"Fenthouse"—E

"Rafter Romance", and "Fenthouse", the two features at the Palace this week, didn't get a laugh out of your correspondent, nor did they raise his blood-pressure to any appreciable extent, but they left him fairly well satisfied with the evening's entertainment. The best part of the program, as far as old Crabface was concerned, was the little Barnacle Bill the Sailor cartoon, which is considerably better than Mickey Mouse. I guess old Crabface is just a bourgeois that doesn't understand art, because he never could go for Mickey in a very big way. Pat Whitchallen's old series of Felix the Cat, with his detachable tail, was a good deal better.

As far as the features are concerned, "Rafter Romance" just misses being a Gaynor-Farrel slush-fee, even though they do go boating in a lily-pond, and turns out to be a passable him-her saga for the Tired College Student, with the usual Litwick landlord catching the usual small son drawing the usual swastikas on the usual wallpaper. In "Fenthouse" we find the Park Avenue lawyer throwing over the heiress to marry the gum-moll because as a matter of fact she has a beautiful soul and was only dragged down by circumstance, with a blackout of the brave misunderstood gangster sacrificing his life to save the hero.

"Une Femme Au Volant"—B

"UNE FEMME AU VOLANT"—A woman at the wheel—it was a common saying among the strong sex that women cannot drive a car properly! It was, until this recent film proved without a shadow of doubt the inaccuracy of this outrageous statement. You should see the mastery with which the beautiful Lisette Lanvin can drive a race-car and cross the finishing line a good first!

But now she doesn't only know how to drive a car she learned to her surprise how to be driven rapidly into matrimony! It's the last mishap that will ever befall her.

The film is a gay story, the old love story of hide and seek, the Romeo and Juliet drama of life etc. Tuneful music accompanies the play and merry songs pop out at every corner sung by the jolly Henry Garat. Photography is simply wonderful.

Cinema de Paris

"An Idyl in Cairo"—C plus
EXCELLENT "shots" characterize both feature picture and shorts at the very comfortable Cinema this week. An Associated Screen News production of scenes from the Caribbean is very colorful and picturesque; it becomes educational when the camera stands in the famous lake at Trinidad, in the banana groves, etc.

"An Idyl in Cairo" tops the bill with the fascinating Renate Muller, and with scenes and settings that are absolutely superb in their brilliant light and shade contrasts and studied composition. The picture itself is good amusement with an obvious and farcical plot, which is really the means to the end of showing: quaint Arab customs; an Arab wedding; a bazaar; an Arab camp; a camel race (parallel to horserace); an eastern "dive"; marvellous angles on the sphinx; modern Egyptian decorative architecture. The editing of the film shows a realization of the psychology of tedium but not a complete acquaintance with it.

Princess

"What Price Innocence"—F

A strong-willed but deluded mother brings up her darling daughter without instruction in the gentle art of dodging the consequences, so the darling daughter did not dodge them... Ruthie's little friend who had a different mother heaves cactus plants at presumptuous males and so lives happily ever after while poor Ruthie nagged by her "disgraced" mother heaves herself from a window into another and better world.

Far from denying that the problem exists, the Hollywoodian treatment of it is the most banal, time-worn, and stupid thus far thrust down the public's throat. The acting measured down to the direction.

As an added attraction "Saturday's Millions" regaled the audience with the spectacle of the big football hero who did not believe in true college spirit until his teammates convinced him of it. Believe it or not.

Capitol

"Anne Vickers"—B

The Mills Brothers, whose ability to imitate musical instruments has given them a nation-wide reputation as entertainers, charmed their audience yesterday in the Capitol Theatre, where they appear for one week. This "human jazz band" has been heard often over the radio, and it must be admitted that they give a better performance on the air than they do across the footlights. Nevertheless their rendition, among others, of the well-known and popular "Hold That Tiger" was beyond reproach.

The Mills Brothers have mastered what may be termed "microphone technique", and it was a treat to watch them take turns at the instrument. This screen adaptation of Sinclair Lewis' "Anne Vickers" is apparently a good picture. This picture has been brutally treated by the censors and as a result much more is left to the imagination than is apparent. Irene Dunne and Walter Huston co-star, and both carry their parts through in a highly convincing manner.

Red Harriers Again Take Dunlop Trophy

VARSITY GRIDDERS DEFEAT TRICOLOUR BY SCORE OF 10-3

QUEEN'S blustering, bruising footballers received quite a large-sized shock at the Stadium here Saturday as their two-game dominance over Varsity was stopped short, their Intercollegiate championship hopes being lost somewhere in the wreck. Long Jawn Sinclair booted and ran the Tricolour out of the running as he scored nine of his team's ten points while the Tricolour could only counter three.

Sinclair capped eight years of play in the intercollegiate union with the greatest effort ever turned in by a backfielder or any other player. He kicked a single point early in the game to rub out Queen's one point advantage, added a placement kick soon after to place his team ahead and when the Tricolour threatened to tie things up, he snatched a forward pass from the hands of a rival receiver to gallop 35 yards for a touchdown, while a convert increased the score to ten. He was the outstanding man on the field both coming and going, kicking the winners into a contending position throughout the entire sixty minutes and intercepting four forwards to ruin whatever chance Queen's did have.

Tricolour Fight Hard
Ted Reeve's men, the surprise team of the league, backed up their challenge in great style, as they carried a wide margin over the Toronto lads in line plunges and forward passing. The plunging trio of Zvonkin, Hamlin and Krug put up the greatest ground-gaining performance of the season, the former going through for yards on three distinct occasions while Hamlin and Krug each moved the yardsticks twice. Seven first downs resulting from plunges are enough to win any game and only depict all the more the work of Sinclair on the secondary defence. Three distinct times the Tricolour came within scoring distance and on the same three occasions were forced back on their heels as Sinclair pulled down three forward passes. Queen's were in there fighting, never-

Red Relay Team Victors In 200 yd. Race On Saturday

MCGILL'S relay entry in Saturday's N.D.G. Community Centre's Swimming Meet led the field in the 200 yd. event, making the time of 1 min. 47 secs. The McGill entry was composed of Marcus Stein, Les Skinner, Allan Bourne, and Fred Shaw. Other entrants in the race were Columbus, Y.M.H.A., St. Lambert Swimming Club, and Maisonneuve.

Marc Stein and Allan Bourne are entrants in the K. of C. meet this Friday. The 200 yd. relay race will also be contested by the Redmen who won Saturday's relay.

theless, and a single boot by Wing and two more by Davis placed them but one point behind in the final minutes until Sinclair ran for the deciding touchdown.

Varsity are uncertain of continuing further in the Dominion playdowns and the players will decide on this question during the week. The great team which sped to two consecutive group titles will be ripped wide open as nine men, including Sinclair have finished their terms at the university.

Medics And Laws Meet To Decide Football Champs

Bloodshed Expected In Tuesday's Tilt At Stadium
LAW LIONS leap on the Medicine Meatchoppers in the final tilt of the season to determine interfaculty football supremacy at the Stadium Tuesday afternoon. The game is scheduled to start at 3.00.

The Lions, wearers of the crown, will be hard put to retain it for another year, according to this year's dope. In their scheduled games, both have kept their record unsullied having conquered their opponents in all four starts, defaults considered. In the offensive side of play, the Sawbones have it over the Lions, having piled up a total of some 90 points with some 20 scored against them, while the Lawyers have been able to register some 35 with 25 or so scored against them.

Both Take Aggies
The two teams have not met this season due to irregularities of the weather and other things but in their games with MacDonald representatives the Lions were able to take them into camp only by a three point margin, (continued on page four)

Gain Fourth Straight Win In Road Run

McGill Scores 12 Points — M.A.A.A. Totals 36

JEFF GOODE IS FIRST, FRANKTON SECOND

Goode Breaks Tape In 26 Minutes Flat

UNDER conditions more conducive to a ski-run, McGill's hardy harriers won the Dunlop Trophy race for the fourth consecutive year. Of the first six runners to finish in the provincial championship race, four were Redmen, with Jeff Goode coming up to expectations by finishing in front, followed by Clarrie Frankton. Vern Crowley and Oswald Peck placed 5th and 6th respectively, the latter nosing out Tommy Lord of M.A.A.A. by a whisker.

Goode's Time 26 Flat
Goode's time of 26 minutes flat for the five mile run around Outremont was 30 seconds short of the race record, which he could doubtless have broken if he had exerted himself, since he appeared quite fresh after the gruelling run. Jeff expressed his regret at the failure of George Barrie and Mervyn Gale to show up, since their presence would undoubtedly have resulted in a closer competition.

With short spikes and woolies the order of the day, the runners presented a motley appearance when W. Allen Walsh, former McGill harrier captain, fired the starting pistol outside North Branch Y.M.C.A. Goode, who led all the way, was closely followed for the first mile by Willie Smallcombe, but Frankton gradually drew ahead of the little Royal Rover ace, finishing a half minute ahead. Bjil Coleman of Nationale, and Crowley of McGill, were only a few seconds behind Smallcombe.

Then along came Peck, of the Red brigade, and Tommy Lord of M.A.A.A., fighting a spirited duel down the final stretch, with Peck winning out. Lord toppled against a spectator, receiving a bad shake-up.

Scheeter Behind Sampson
Scheeter, close behind Gerry Sampson, was the first of McGill's second team to come in, and was followed by Boulton and by Cooper of the second Red team. Wade, the Olympic miler, (Continued on page 4)

GYM GROUP WORKS HARD AT PRACTICES FOR COMING MEETS

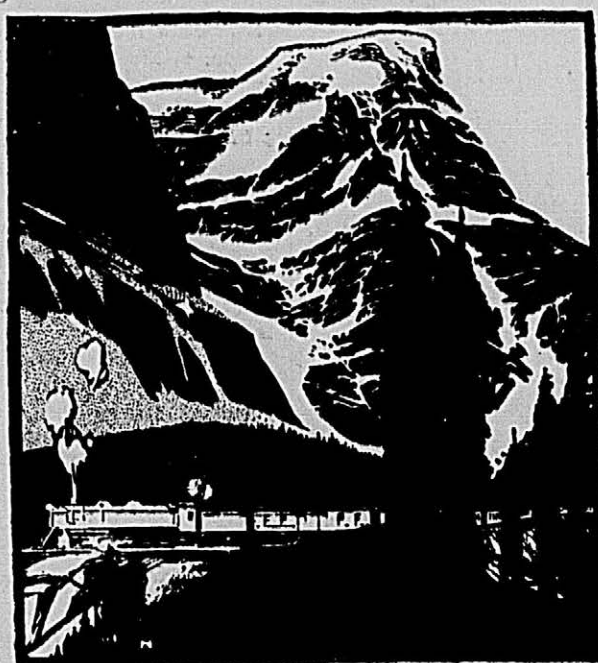

HAY FINLAY'S gymnasts are hard at the grind of practice session, in preparation for a full season of competitive activity. Quite a number of likely prospects have been regular attendants at the practices to date including newcomers, although the coach wishes to emphasize that there still remains plenty of opportunity for new men to take part in the workouts. Prospective gymnasts are, therefore, urged to present themselves on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays at the hour of 5.30 in the M.H.S. gym.

The gymnasts will face their first test of the season on December 2nd when two teams of five men each will compete in a practice meet with some local teams, as yet to be selected, but very likely Central Y. High bars, parallels, horse and mals will constitute the four categories in which the Red teams will compete.

Prospects Good
George Dodd, captain of the club for this season, will lead these teams in the coming meet as well as in later contests. Manager Jim Bare, a well-known performer with the gymnasts for the past three years, is another member of the first team who will take part. Other prospects include McCarthy, Saunders, Hickey, Ransom and Walker, the latter a newcomer, a product of R.M.C.

Following the Christmas holidays, competition will begin in earnest for the gymnasts. Selection of an intercollegiate team will be based upon the results of the Wicksteed tourney, a meet contested annually at the college. As usual, there will be three classes: Freshman, Intermediate, and Graduates, a medal going to the winner of each class.

Enter Provincial Tourney
Just a week prior to the intercollegiate meet, Hay Finlay will enter as many teams of five as he can aggregate from his candidates, in the Provincial contest. On February 3rd, the McGill men will act as hosts to Toronto Varsity in the intercollegiate meet, titular honors being held at present by the Blueboys.

genius of its staff, has participated in no mean measure in the colossal advances of recent years.

"The year 1911 was the beginning of a 'Golden Age' for the medical faculty of McGill. Already its prestige among the schools on this continent was noteworthy. For nearly a century, as a clinical school of practical teaching at the bedside, it shared with Philadelphia the enviable reputation as the great teaching centre of this continent. In the matter of research, however, the lamp of the Medical School had, for some years, burned dimly, and watchers from the Tower of Progress looked anxiously for signs of vitality in its spirit of investigation.

"But the year 1911 inaugurated a new era. Through the generosity of Lord Strathcona, a new medical building was erected to house the beautiful museums, the laboratories for anatomy and histology, the library, the public health department and the faculty of dentistry.

"After the war six million dollars was collected by graduates and friends, foundations and the provincial Government, to further the interests of McGill, and almost immediately afterwards the Rockefeller Foundation gave a million dollars to the medical faculty chiefly for the purpose of encouraging research. The enormous building for the biological sciences, housing five important departments, was at once erected, and has become a vital factor in the development of scientific endeavor.

Many Endowments

"Friends of McGill have, for many years, been especially generous to its medical faculty, but since 1911, in particular, the acquisition of endowments for professorial chairs, the gifts of scholarships and monetary aids for research have been added with impressive continuity.

"But buildings and endowments alone do not make a great medical school, only men with the spirit of inquiry, with an understanding of the method by which the frontiers of knowledge may be advanced, leaders who could stimulate the younger generation to the highest ideals of investigation and education—these only can help to build up a great institution.

"It is with that in view that the personnel of our Medical School has been selected. It was for that reason that 16 or more senior leaders in the laboratory sciences and in the clinical field have been added to our departments, and through their help the reputation of our school has been enhanced in a way of which we may well be proud. So much then has been done in 22 brief years.

"Perfection, however, consists in progress. Much always remains unfulfilled. There is no such thing as standing still; but, having already achieved so much, we may have confidence in the future, and even with budgets that are, of necessity, restricted, we can surely wait patiently for better times and carry on."

was the next man to come in. A bad fall at one of the corners slowed him up considerably. Several men dropped out during the course of the hard run.

E. C. Townsend presented shields bearing the "V" triangle to Goode, Frankton and Smallcombe. Mr. Walsh then presented the new shield donated by the Dunlop Tire and Rubber Goods Co. to the McGill captain, Charlie Frankton. The Redmen's victory gained for them the first leg on this trophy. The members of the team also received small shields for their efforts.

Successful Track Season

Saturday's win culminates a successful season for Coach Van Wagner's charges, who have taken the Intercollegiate Track and Field Championship, the Intercollegiate Harrier Championship, and the Dunlop Trophy—no mean list of accomplishments for so short a season. Trainer Ernie Cook also comes in for his share of kudos, having attended the athletes assiduously.

10-7, while the Meatchoppers ran up a 40-0 score in their merry stride. This itself is indicative of the relative of-fensive strengths of the teams. Some changes in the line-ups will, no doubt, be made.

Last minute reports issued from the Pig have it that the Lions and Meatchoppers will resort to passing and kicking tactics rather than plunging football. Mr. J. Frost is being implored to stay away, in which case a muddy field should greet the players. Mud horses will, therefore, be in the as-cendency. It is doubtful if the Lions will be able to harangue their ways to a victory over the Meatchoppers. On the other hand anything can happen either on a muddy or a slippery field, depending on the weatherman's inclinations.

Van Wagner Speaks

The Quebec Physical Education As-sociation will hold their first general meeting for this season tonight at 8.15 p.m. in Room 12, of the Royal Victoria College. The subject of the evening will be "Book Reviews." Mr. F. M. Van Wagner, Asst. Physical Director for Men, McGill University, will discuss recent publications on basketball; Mr. W. O. Searle, Physical Director for Boys, Montreal High School, will discuss those on swim-ming; Mr. A. S. Cockhill, Physical Director, Technical High School,

As a result of a decision reached by the Students Council the appearance of the McGill Glee Club which was to have taken place on the stage of the Capitol Theatre tonight has been postponed. The concert, however, may take place some time next week.

High Commissioner in Canada, ex-pressing concern in Sir Arthur's illness and asking that his sympa-thy and sincere good wishes be conveyed.

Earl Jellicoe and the Empire Council of the British Empire Service League have telegraphed expressing good wishes for a speedy recovery. The Dominion Com-mand of the Canadian Legion cabled to the following effect: "Do-minion Command of the Canadian Legion and indeed all ex-service men in Canada learn with deep anxiety of the illness of our be-loved commander in the field. We pray for his speedy and complete recovery and would like him to be assured of our unflinching devo-tion."

A similar message was received from Australia and read as follows: "Conformity unanimous resolution recent annual congress soldiers league Australia desire sympathise with your illness and wish speedy recovery." These are only indica-tive of many other messages of the same tenor.

Of those received from non-of-ficial sources the following is most exemplary and striking, being sent by a rancher in Manitoba: "Dear Sir, I heard over radio that you were sick and I pray God you make a good recovery. I remem-ber well the night you jacked me on the road to Passchendale."
